DETAILED ACTION

Continued Examination Under 37 CFR 1.114

1. A request for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, including the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e), was filed in this application after final rejection. Since this application is eligible for continued examination under 37 CFR 1.114, and the fee set forth in 37 CFR 1.17(e) has been timely paid, the finality of the previous Office action has been withdrawn pursuant to 37 CFR 1.114. Applicant's submission filed on 04 February 2004 has been entered.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

2. The following is a quotation of the second paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall conclude with one or more claims particularly pointing out and distinctly claiming the subject matter which the applicant regards as his invention.

3. Claim 115 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, second paragraph, as being indefinite for failing to particularly point out and distinctly claim the subject matter which applicant regards as the invention.

In claim 115, it is not clear what structure is set forth by "while the board is supported on a plurality of blocks". The recitation on line 6 appears to indicate that the board is supported on curved upper surfaces of ribs rather than the blocks.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

4. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

5. Claims 110 and 112 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Neu (US 5,839,337).

Neu discloses all the recited elements of the invention including:

- a) a panel having an uppermost surface and molded as part of the separator (A, Figure below);
- b) a plurality of blocks (B, Figure below) as one piece with the panel and extending upward from the uppermost surface of the panel creating a recessed portion (C, Figure below) on the panel;
- c) a cutting mechanism.

Regarding claim 112, an actuator (78)

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

6. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Art Unit: 3724

7. Claims 22, 92-93, 101-106, 109, and 115 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Neu (US 5,839,337) in view of Patadia et al. (US 6,146,504).

Neu discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for curved upper surfaces. Patadia teaches arcuate upper surfaces (154) to reduce scratching on the workpiece. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to modify upper surfaces of Neu with curved upper surfaces as taught by Patadia in order to minimize scratching on circuit board surfaces. Regarding claims 92-93, a pneumatically-powered actuator (78 in Neu). Regarding claim 101, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was use aluminum to form the panel, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice. Regarding claims 103-104, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to form blocks as discrete pieces from the panel and are fastened to the panel, since it has been held that constructing a formerly integral structure in various elements involves only routine skill in the art. Regarding claims 105-106, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to select an optimum height of blocks, since it has been held that where the general conditions of a claim are disclosed in the prior art, discovering the optimum or workable ranges involves only routine skill in the art.

8. Claims 31-34 and 100 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Neu (US 5,839,337) in view of Patadia et al. (US 6,146,504) as applied to claim 22, and further in view of Applicant's Admitted Prior Art (hereafter AAPA).

The modified device of Neu discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for pins extending upwardly from beneath the panel to beyond an upper surface of the panel wherein the pins are configured to extend into the board and retain the board over the panel. AAPA discloses the use of pins for the purpose of insuring tight alignment of the board. It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide the pins as taught by AAPA on the modified device of Neu in order to properly retain the board which may have the length extending beyond the length of the panel. Although Neu does not show a board having retaining apertures, AAPA teaches the use of retaining orifices is old and well known in the art and the modified device of Neu would provide the pins extending from element 69 which is beneath the panel to beyond the upper surface of the panel and do not extend through the panel but configured to extend into the board to retain the board. Regarding claims 33-34, a pneumatically-powered actuator (78 in Neu).

9. Claim 111 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Neu (US 5,839,337).

Neu discloses the invention substantially as claimed except for the panel comprises aluminum. However, it would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was use aluminum to form the panel, since it has been held to be within the general skill of a worker in the art to select a known material on the basis of its suitability for the intended use as a matter of obvious design choice.

Response to Arguments

10. Applicant's arguments with respect to claims 22, 31-34, 92-93, 100-106, 109-112, and 115 have been considered but are moot in view of the new ground(s) of rejection.
